

ABSTRACT

A flexible pouch, particularly for foodstuffs of the moist type, having a line of preferential tearing in which two side walls are rendered integral by at least a sealing line and the line of preferential tearing provided in one of the two side walls. The line of preferential tearing extends along the sealing line, the distance (a) between the line of preferential tearing and the sealing line being less than or equal to 10 mm.